A Rising Star

I know, I know... I don't post anything for almost two weeks! But, I have a reason! The 1st term is almost over! I had to study for the tests... Christmas is coming, and 2013 too!

So, today I'm going to introduce an author (She isn't very famous), but writes very well.

Her name is Mafalda Moutinho and she was born on 14th February 1973, in Lisbon. So she is Portuguese, from Portugal. Here I leave a short biography.

Mafalda is graduated in International Relations at the Institute of Social and Political Sciences of the Technical University of Lisbon, in 1995, after completing a course at the University Central Lancashire, England, with an Erasmus scholarship. That year, he moved to London and in 1996 completed an MA in International Relations and European Studies at the London Centre of International Relations, University of Kent, with a scholarship.

In 1997 he began working as Management Consultant in London for a large multinational consulting company, Accenture. Worked headquartered in the British capital for more than six years, although with continuous movement, living for extended periods in different countries and cities: London, Paris, Milan, Cairo, The Hague, Stockholm, Madrid and finally Roma. Since 2003, lives in Milan where in addition to writing, also does translation work in English, French, Italian and Spanish.

I had the pleasure of speaking with her, and she's very nice, besides being beautiful and have a great smile!

She writes a collection of books called in Portuguese "Os Primos" and in English "The Cousins"

I've read three of them, and are perfect for any teenager to read, because it has enough real situations, besides being very educational
